Course Description:

The course provides sustained experience with the research and writing tasks common in the academy. Students will explore various academic genres, with particular focus on learning to undertake academic inquiry; engage in close reading; incorporate research into their writing; and document sources. Peer response, reflection and revision are emphasized through a summative course portfolio.

Educational Philosophy:

The instructor's educational philosophy is to improve written communication skills.

Learning Outcomes:Core Learning Outcomes

1. Develop and maintain a controlling theme and/or focus for a research essay(s) that is fully developed in the use of details and examples.
2. Demonstrate a range of writing activities in completing writing tasks (pre-writing, revising, editing, proof-reading, and formatting).
3. Analyze and integrate research resources for essays based on traditional and online research, which include using appropriate documentation practices.

Core Assessment:

Every course has a Core Assessment, which is one assignment given in all sections of the course. For En 106, the Core Assessment consists of one final-draft essay from each student's portfolio, chosen by the student, plus a Reflective Essay. Written at the end of term, the Reflective Essay must describe in significant detail the student's strengths and a discussion of opportunities for improvement as revealed in the complete portfolio. The reflective essay must also analyze the student's overall development as a writer over the duration of the semester/term.

Although all students in all sections will present a portfolio that includes evidence of prewriting and multiple drafts, the Core Assessment will consist only of one final-draft essay and the Reflective Essay.
