UNIVERSITY<sup>SM</sup>

Park University Style Guide

Park University has adopted The Associated Press Stylebook for its writing standards, and currently refers to the 2019 edition.

The director of communications and public relations within Park's Office of University Engagement maintains the Park University Style Guide to serve as an additional reference for Park University faculty, staff and students when producing professional and consistent copy/text for University publications, including press releases, newsletters, periodicals, publications, brochures, fliers, etc., as well as website copy, official University e-mails and advertisements.

In most instances, the Park University Style Guide supersedes The Associated Press Stylebook. Questions regarding style should be referred to Brad Biles, director of communications and public relations at brad.biles@park.edu.

IMPORTANT NOTICE: It is Park University policy to require that all publications prepared for external audiences be approved by the University's communications team — the director of communications and public relations, director of strategic communications and/or the associate vice president for university engagement — within the Office of University Engagement, prior to distribution.
